FEEDBACK OF OUR PAST AUDIENCE

"No wonder films don't always do well. After seeing a debate like this where so many intellectual young minds fight it out who would want to go to a movie theatre?"

-Mahesh Bhatt

"Way beyond my expectations. Never expected a technical college to hold such a non-technical Debate!"

-Dolly Thakore

"The debate was well-organised and the participants were well aware. You people reminded me of the smart youth our country is famous for"

- Madhur Bhandarkar

THEME

India is the world's most populous democracy, with a population of over 1.2 billion people. The country's integration into the global economy has been accompanied by economic growth over the last decade.

India is now a global player. Nonetheless, India continues to face poverty and other challenges associated with a developing economy. India's international trade and military posture have grown as its economy has recovered. Indians are generally supportive of India's global engagement.

Many people, however, have no opinion on such global issues; international relations are far removed from their daily concerns. The intangible cultural heritage of India stems from the country's 5000-year-old culture and civilization. It has had a significant impact on the religious life of most of Asia.

India has also increased its influence in other parts of the world, both directly and indirectly. The significant influence of this intangible aspect of India's religious and spiritual heritage provides a profound insight into India's own history, culture, and civilisation. Let us remember that heritage does not end with monuments or art collections.

It also includes traditions or living expressions inherited from our forefathers and passed down to our descendants.

In the changing global environment of research and development, where more of an interdisciplinary approach is becoming the fundamental driver of technological innovations, India may choose to take up some of the revenue-generating industries and re-engineer products at low cost to compete with their global makers, or take up pioneering initiatives in the field of basic research to change the face of human life.
